Daiwa House Receives Highest Recognition, Named to the “Climate Change A List” at CDP Climate Change for the Second Consecutive Year

Daiwa House Industry Co., Ltd. (main office: Osaka, President and COO: Keiichi Yoshii) was named to the “Climate Change A List”, the highest recognition at CDP Climate Change, for the second consecutive year.

The CDP is an international non-profit organization launched in the U.K. in 2000. It encourages companies and governments to reduce their greenhouse gas emissions, and promotes water resource and forest conservation. The organization urges companies to disclose and manage environment information in cooperation with 525 institutional investors that have total managed assets of 96 trillion U.S. dollars.

The CDP surveyed more than 8,400 companies worldwide at CDP Climate Change 2019. It assessed the results of their activities in terms of their response and strategies toward climate change in eight grades (A, A-, B, B-, C, C-, D, and D-). Companies that are making particularly outstanding efforts are named to the Climate Change A List. In FY2019, 179 companies (of which 38 were Japanese companies) were named to this list.

We will continue to create new value with customers through a wide range of environmental activities in the future and work to utilize and increase this value to contribute to the realization of enriched and stable lifestyles for all people.
